Each trained member of the Counseling ministry team has a resume, statement of purpose and cleared background check on file.

The role of the Counseling mentors means they will be using learned and practiced skills of listening, support and prayer. It does not entitle them to diagnose or give a treatment plan of any kind. It also means they remain aware of and stay clearly within the scope of their expertise.

The information discussed during your mentoring session is confidential with two exceptions which deal with the reporting of past or present child abuse and any immediate threats of physical harm to yourself or another person.
